THE CANAL TREATY

If we are to give credence to the latest reports the United States is to be congratulated on the happy outcome of the treaty with England which bears on the Isthmian canal project. A short while ago it was when finally adopted, the General As sembly will be asked to pass. The com rumored that neither England nor America had given way in the treaty matter and that it was satisfactory to all parties. This appeared to be an anomalous situation, but when it was further announced that this country was privileged to build the canal, yet ing where the fish are caught for food to all parties. This appeared to be an to maintain strict neutrality over it purposes. To obtain this end it will be necessary to stop menhaden fishing it at all times. Americans had just cause at all times, Americans had just cause Maryland waters. The menhaden a for believing we had been enchred. food for fish which frequent the Ches The report from Washington now, peak and tributary waters and which are in turn a valued food for the people which seems to be more authentic, changes the phase of the matter considerably. As it now goes, we are to build the canal and such defenses as we see fit, the canal to be neutral at all times and open to all other nations except in case this country should be at war, in such event the canal to be closed and defended against our antagonist. With this understanding there should be no trouble in having the treaty accepted by the U.S. Senate and by the people at large. No matter how much we may have favored American ownership of the Nicaragua or other isthmian canal the people would never have consented to a surrender of the privilege of defense of it or of our interests if at ginia legislation will be watched with inwar with another nation. Equally as objectionable would it have been to us to have had another nation build such a waterway. In fact we do not believe this country would today consent to any such undertaking, and we would move, undershadow of the Monroe doctrine, to prevent such a canal from being built by others. So the only result by which the canal project could be put through is by such treaty provisions as we are now assured of.

THE Convention has practically decided to act upon the recommendation of Delegate R. Walton Moore and have all elections in the fall, county and district elections to be held every four years. This is not such a bad idea. We have never seri- life so highly and frequently recommendously objected to quadrennial elections, but do strenuously object to quadrennial sessions of the Legislature. Let the Convention rescind its action on the last-named question and the people will be satisfied with the termination of these issues. The result of the vote at the recent election was largely in favor of combining the spring and fall elections, but the Convention will fall into error if it takes this result to mean that the people also want to do away with biennial sessions of the Legislature. Under existing laws we have every year an election in the fall and every other year one in the spring-making six regular elections in every four years. Under the recommendations to have only three elections in every four years-or just half as many as heretofore.

LET us hope that the election at which the new Virginia Constitution shall be voted on will be free of taint of fraud. such as seems to infect the Alabama election. We think it will be. That is one matter in which the people of Virginia will refuse to permit crookedness or to submit to its results.—Richmond News.

The News is taking a great deal forgranted and exhibiting wonderful faith. Evidently it concludes-or maybe it knows-that the new Constitution is to be submitted to a vote of the people. All signs heretofore have pointed to its being proclaimed. In the other case our contemporary thinks the people will not permit any crookedness in the election on it. How are they going to prevent it? If we are to judge by the past-and we take late Democratic stumpers' words for this-the Constitution will fare no better than the "nigger" at the hands of the election officers if they happen to take a dislike to the document.

Inquiries are being made by those who have filed claims for rebate on revenue stamps left on hand July 1st.

The officials state that it will probably be a year before these rebate accounts are figured out at the department in Washington. The task has surpassed expectation and the applications have simply flooded all the collectors' offices throughout the country.

Fight For Oyster Lands.

Fight For Oyster Lands.

The State board of fisheries devoted an entire sitting to a case, from Princess Anne County, involving certain oyster lands in Lynnhaven Bay. W. R. Mapp, of that county, made application to-Oyster Inspector Avery for the land in question, according to the law governing such cases, and the inspector declined, on the ground that the lands were already rented for fishing purposes to another, who was finally held not to have had the right to it under the law. Mr. Mapp applied for almandamus compelling the inspector to honor his application, and inspector to honor his application, and the proceedings were dismissed by the court. Appeal was taken to the board. The board decided that it was the duty of the inspector, under the law, to allow Mapp to have the land, and an order was made to that effect.

There were a number of speeches on both sides, the most strik-ing of which were by Mr. St. George R. Fitzhugh, of Fredericksburg, against, and Rev. M. Ashby Jones, 'of Richmond, for the resolution. The former ridicaled the preachers in a good-natured way, and made a very effective speech.

Senator Glass has completed his suf-frage plan, which does not differ in many of its provisions from the Thom or the Daniel plan, but the few differences are baniel plan, but the few differences are somewhat radical. The Glass plan makes the understanding clause a temporary expedient until Jan. 1, 1903, after which it is dropped altogether and no person who is not listed at the two general reg-istrations to be held prior to Jan. 1, 1903, can thereafter claim its exemptions. After Jan. 1, 1903, every person offering to register or vote is put upon the same footing. He must prepay a poll tax of $1.50, make application in his own handnumber of negroes from the registration books until after the poll-tax requirement becomes operative: so that if they pre-sent themselves for registration after Jan. 1,1903, they must not only run the gauntlet of a rigorous educational qualigauntlet of a rigorous educational quan-fication, but before going through the orden most first pay $1.50 polltax. Mr. Glass' plan also provides for equal repre-sentation of the two great political par-ties among the judges of election, so as to insure absolutely fair elections after the electorate has been purified by the dimination of the great mass of objectionable voters.

rear. This is a most desirable brick residence, in excellent condition.

Second. The lot on Sophia street adjoining the rear of the before-mentioned residence int, and on which the fish-house now stands. Third. The valuable store-house and lot on Main street, in Fredericksburg, now occupied as a shoe store by Brown & Crismond, running back to Sophia street, with a frame residence on the rear of said lot on Sophia street. This property is at the centre of the best business block in the city.

Fourth. The dwelling-house and lot on west side of Prince Edward street, in Fredericksburg, next to the new residence of Dr. J. E. Tompkins. This will make a most desirable home for a small family, being adminably located. Mr. Jno. W. Scott, a prominent citizen of Richmond, died Thursday morning from the effects of an attack made on him by highwaymen shortly after midnight of Wednesday while going to his home from a club. About 2 o'clock Maj E. T. D. Myers heard unusual sounds at to supply yourselves with seasonable Goods at a great saving. No matter wha you want in Dry Goods, Notions, Underwear, Blankets (White or Red Flanuel etc., look at Baker's and you will certainly save money. MARRIAGES THE WILLIAM BERNARD STOVE BOUSE E. T.
